In the spring of 2004 City Beat TV - Shanghai featured Meadowbrook in two separate interviews.

First was the kick-off of one of our camping events, we were glad to have the opportunity to host the Boy Scouts' two day camp. It was definitely a memorable experience to see the youngsters camping out in the centre of our 35 hectares of grasslands surrounded by meadows and ponds.

The Second interview was about why we started Meadowbrook and our goal and mission. After spending time with the Shanghai team, Ed (founder) learned many people were going abroad to purchase expensive horses for competition purposes. They felt by going abroad provided better breeds of horses than what was available in China. Unfortunately many of these foreign horses died shortly after arrival to China due to lack of the special knowledge required for their feeding, training and boarding. Generally horses were considered livestock and were treated in very primitive way. What the market needed were horses which were suited for sport and leisure. But these fine animals require much care, attention and training. Hopefully by our efforts we can gradually spread the modern concept of proper horse care, horse training and better attitudes towards horses at Meadowbrook for the enjoyment of all.
